WHAT IT IS

ExposurePoint is a SharePoint Framework (SPFx) web part that a site owner adds to one SharePoint Online site. It checks who can open what on that site, gives a plain-English score from 0 to 100 across seven risks Microsoft names for Copilot, names every file, link and person behind each issue, and fixes them after you confirm. It runs in the browser with the signed-in person's own permissions, with no admin consent, no Microsoft Graph permissions and no APPS 365 servers in the way.

KEY FEATURES

Everything you get

A plain-English score
One number from 0 to 100, where higher means lower exposure, with a band and what fixing would do to it.

Every link named
Anyone links and organisation links, with the file or folder and who each one lets in.

Whole-organisation access found
"Everyone except external users" or "Everyone" on the site, its groups, a library or a file.

Guests and wide-open files
External guests who can open the content, and items open wider than the site.

Fixed after you confirm
Every confirmation names who loses access, nothing changes until you confirm, and fixes only take access away.

History and reports
The score history is kept in your own site, with a report to send to IT.
